

NAMMIGRÍS

I made this fly for the 2010 season and it's a name you will find in the log books on Miðfjardará, Vatnsdalsá and Korpa. At least this is where I took it. I don't know where people who got some samples took theirs but I know they caught fish. Nammigrís means candy pig. It looks "sweet" and fits perfect in the small river in Iceland but I'm sure it will do good other places in the world. It works very well on slow flowing rivers where you can strip it in short aggressive strokes but I also upstream fished salmon in the late season where the fish has been in the river for some time. It also worked great in low water conditions.

Put this fly in water and the two blueish colors melts together and the bright red fiber tail becomes transparent, real "sweet".

See if your local salmon has a sweet tooth ...

STEP BY STEP TYING

MATERIALS NEEDED:

Wing: Turquoise Artic Fox and King Fisher Blue Rabbit

Body: Silver

Hook: WMC or similar size 14 treble

Tail: Fluo Red Crystal fibers and tread

Cheeks: Jungle cock

1. Make a little fluoro bright red butt.

2. Ad a fluoro bright red crystal fiber tail.

3. Make a silver body

4. Underwing and throat of turquoise Artic Fox.

5. Upper wing, King Fisher Blue Rabbit. Notice, not a zonker strip!

5. Ad Jungle Cock.

